

JORDANIAN ARAB ARMY

The Jordanian Arab Army was descended from the British-led Transjordan Arab Legion, and as such used a lot of British equipment. Their uniforms were of local manufacture, but the helmets and webbing were standard British equipment.

Green Ochre (914)
Helmet

Khaki (988)
Uniform

Stone Grey (884)
Webbing and Gaiters

Gunmetal Grey (863)
Rifle

Beige Brown (875)
Rifle Woodwork

Black (950) or Grey Green (866)
Boots

JORDANIAN ARMOURED VEHICLES

Green Ochre (914)
Vehicles

Reflective Green (890)
Camouflage

Black (950)
Optional Camouflage

Gunmetal Grey (863)
Machine-guns, Anti-aircraft
Guns, and Tracks

JORDANIAN MARKINGS

Jordan used a mix of British and American equipment painted in a yellow colour, with hard wavy lines of green as camouflage. Some vehicles added wavy lines in black as well.

Their marking system was essentially the British system. Vehicles carried geometric symbols indicating battalion and company. Red symbols denoted the first battalion, yellow the second, and blue probably denoted mechanised infantry. The first squadron had triangles, the second squares, and the third had circles. The names of famous Arabic generals were often inscribed below these symbols. The front right mudguard (looking forward) carried the brigade flash, while the other mudguard carried the registration plate.

